Delfield continues to offer new products and options to expand our capabilities and provide customers with the options they need to improve their operations.

The 6000XL reach-in refrigeration products are specifically designed to serve the commercial foodservice market. The 6000XL series will enhance productivity for any foodservice operation.

The initial investment in Delfield's 6000XL series is more than justified by the benefits that kitchen operations will derive from its use. The product is standard with features that are designed to bolster the bottom line and increase revenues.
